From the Connecticut Courant.

THE BRIEF REMARKER.

The philosophers of the last age ex-patriated and largely on the felicitous condition of savages. Those simple children of nature, they held up to view as models of human excellence, and as possessing the greatest sum of human enjoyments. With minds unwarping by prejudice, and with hearts unsophisticated & true to the genuine impulses of nature, their lives, reflected, to the eye, the expression of primeval innocence. Knowing neither the galling fetters of law nor the unnatural and odious distinctions of civilization, they, free as the air they breathed, roamed their forests, or together enjoyed the sports and pastimes of social intercourse, without obstacle or hindrance.
And what though their dwellings were smoky cabins, or nothing better than dens and caves of the earth? What though their raiment, if raiment they had, was foul and squalid. And what though their scanty food was rascid and tasteless?
No matter. Being always accustomed to this way of living, they desired nothing better; without any repinings of discontent, they joyfully received what nature gave. Happy savages! happy in the comparison with civilized man, playing under the cruel power of prohibition, doomed to delve the earth or plow the ocean, the slave of artificial wants, the prey of ambition and avarice. Thrice happy slave! threefold more happy than the child of restraint, of labour, & of care; threefold more happy than the slavish mechanic, of civil society, manager of his superfluous wealth and his boasted arts and institutions.

Such were the dreams of former days, even of days not long past; but they are known now to be but dreams. Subsequent discoveries have confounded the phre-nology of Rousseau, and put to shame the disciples of his school. Many have run to and fro and knowledge has been increased. Great indeed, and far beyond all former example, has been the access of intellectual, social, moral, and political knowledge, within the last forty years, respecting the habits of our globe, and the progress of human improvement.
Travelers and voyagers have traversed the whole living world in every direction. New regions have been explored; nations and tribes formerly unknown, or scarcely known, have been discovered, and the most accurate and carefully noted a description; & the results are unfavorable, alike to the condition and the character of the mere child of nature. It is found that the disciples which are beheld here and there, amid the thick darkness of the pagan world, spring from patriarchal tradition, that even in civilized countries, in no wise illumined by the rays of the gospel, the most abominable & the most horrible practices in social and domestic life are sanctioned by long and immemorial custom; and that the child of nature, the savage, "is every where found to be a resolute, unfeeling, treacherous, and ferocious animal."

There is one respect however in which philosophy has been not altogether in the wrong: it is that the savage state is the most natural, that is to say, the most congenial with the depraved feelings and propensities of the human kind.
Well ordered social institutions are mounds of virtue erect against vice, and which vice is ever struggling to demolish.
Whereas in what is called the state of nature, every man does what seemeth him good indulging with little or no restraint in whatever his heart inclines him to. And of all things in the world this is the sweetest, more gratifying than to be clothed in purple, to drink in gold, and to sleep upon gold. Nothing is felt by more natural to man than the love of liberty, or more delicious to his heart than the full enjoyment of it—the liberty of doing as he pleases, of openly acting every way and in all cases according to his inclinations, without dread of punishment or fear of shame. Upon this liberty which indeed is the only liberty for which our fallen nature has a sincere and unreserved liking—the laws of regular government, the customs and opinions of virtuous society, and above all, the institutions of a most holy religion, are galling checks.

Hence it is, in a considerable part, that the transition from civilization to savagery is much easier than from the latter condition to the former. Almost every savage feels a decided preference for his own way of life, and looks down upon the accumulated conveniences of a civilized man not with cold indifference, but with utter disgust and contempt.
Not for all the wealth that the world could confer would he barter his liberty.
If you take away a savage boy and bring him into the bosom of civilized society, he pines for his native wilds. Though you feed and clothe and instruct him and even caress him as your own child, he still pines with discontent. Or even if perchance you get him to be apparently satisfied with his new condition, after a short sojourn with savages, he comes to be as much a savage as ever. But too he is hard and painful, the decendant is easy. A boy taken from civil-lized life and made to live with savages, now soon he is identified with them, in feeling, as well as in manners! When brought back, after a few years, to his native home, how difficult, how next to impossible it is to dissolve the charm that has fastened itself upon him; to cure him of his wildness; to make him steady, and industrious and satisfied under the whole some restraints of law and religion. is not theory, but experience, that speaks in this wise.

Nor are these the only instances which experience furnishes us with. There one of much greater import, and of far deeper interest: it is the apparent, not to say eagerness, with which multitudes of our countrymen code from civilized life.—Look! what perpetual streams of emigration from the bosom of civilized and religious society, to the outskirts of the living world!
Look! how new levies of the four legions eagerly advance forward, year by year, beyond the last anterior limits, leaving behind them regions of wilderness, dischequered here and there with mortification.

See the population of an immense territory, a population of millions "of our colour, flesh and blood," nearly all of an evangelical means as the savage who yells on the banks of the Mississippi, without schools, without a ministry, without religious institutions, without sabbaths: without bibles; sunk and en-sinking into the depths of moral de-bauchment: their children rearing up to the blasting influence of an uneducated culture, with scarcely any sense of moral or religious obligation.

Not that no part of the spectacle is cheering. The sight of so many ful wilds, the dreary hazards of beasts, turned into fruitful fields, is lightful, at the same time that it reflects on the industry, the enterprise, the hardihood, and the perseverance of our countrymen. But it is progress too fast. There are few, if any, employed the whole day in grubbing. Surely the grubs can have no objection to this kind of service: they ac-

The sight of so many light-skinned, the dreary haunts of roving savages, turned into fruitful fields, is deplorable, at the same time that it reflects credit upon the industry, the enterprise, the hardihood, and the perseverance of our mountmen. But it is a progressing spectacle. There are few, if any, even in the settled regions whose population is drained away by thousands, which are not by improved cultivation, by utilizing all their resources, and by turning to the plain living of the farmer, being made to support even a greater size of population, while their superior intellectual, social, moral, and religious advantages, would much more than avail any advantages obtainable by migrating into foreign deserts. The Americans are not however, from the elements only, the loving spirit of the American and the Arab seems to have the same. Even when a new frontier is scarcely populated in the region of the twentieth part of its design to remove further out as if the nearest their hearts was to be as far as possible from the very center of civilization.

Whether does this admit of an answer. So far otherwise, the immense, undivided wilderness, belonging to the world would keep the migration in full heat for several generations to come.

JAMES KENNEDY & SON,

BOOKSELLERS, KING STREET,
Have just received from LEE'S PATENT MEDICINE STORE, No. 40 Maiden Lane, N. York.
A FRESH SUPPLY
Of the following genuine Medicines.
For the prevention and cure of Bilious and Malignant Fevers, is recommended.

Hahn's Anti-Bilious Pills

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventors, in several parts of the West Indies, and the Southern Middle States, particularly in N. York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Petersburg, Richmond, Norfolk, Edenton, Wilmington, Charleston, and Savannah. The testimony of a number of persons at each of the above places can be adduced, who have reason to believe, that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives, when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy, founded on mere assertion.

It is not, indeed, presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience, for believing that a dose of these Pills, taken once in every two weeks, during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventative; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases, their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate, and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation, and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile & prevent its morbid secretions—to restore & amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which is so often fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance—they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

HAMILTON'S WORM DESTROYING LOZENGES.

Which have cured an immense number of persons of both sexes, of every age, and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from worms, and from obstructions or fulness in their stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of, as operating with violence; on the contrary, a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and perfectly inoffensive, and is also mild in its operation, cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old, should no worms exist in the body; but will, without pain or griping, cleanse the stomach and bowels, of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms, and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

DESCRIPTION OF WORMS.

And the symptoms by which they are known:
Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds, viz.—The Terebra, or large round worm; the Ascarides, or small man-worm; the Cucurbitina, or short, flat, white worm; and lastly, the Tænia, or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long, and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food, and sometimes voracious; purging, with slimy & fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; slow fever, with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face coated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms, should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success, in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent the vomiting and purging of chint—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys the hands of the inferior part of our citizens.

tain, easily known, and will restore to health and strength a great number, when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard.

A safe and effectual remedy for acute and chronic rheumatism, gout, asthmatic cough, palsy, lumbago, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains, bruises, pain in the face and neck, &c.

The Genuine Persian Lotion.

So celebrated among the fashionable throughout Europe, as an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellant minerals, the basis of other lotions, and of unparalleled efficacy in removing blemishes of the face and skin, freckles, pimples, inflammatory redness, scurfs, tetter, ringworms, sunburns, prickly heat, &c. The Persian Lotion operates mildly, without impeding the natural insensible perspiration, which is essential to health, yet its effects are speedy and permanent, rendering the skin delicately soft and smooth, and improving the complexion.

The Restorative Powder for the teeth and Gums.

This excellent preparation comforts and strengthens the gums, preserves the enamel from decay, and cleanses and whitens the teeth, by absorbing all the acrimonious slime and foulness, which suffered to accumulate, never fails to injure and finally ruin them.

On the night of the 6th of December 1816, the Exchange Office of the subscriber, Bridge street, Georgetown, from appearances by a false key, was robbed of the following property, in specie, consisting of dollars, change, American and English gold, about 200 dollars; bank notes, mostly three dollar notes of the bank of Washington, and some small tickets, together about 30 dollars, a one pound note of the bank of England, and one hundred and sixty four lottery tickets as per numbers below. The lottery tickets can be of no use to the persons taking them, and an attempt to pass them would only lead to a detection, it is therefore hoped that the person or persons who took them, will return them to the subscriber through the Post Office at Georgetown.
